Research was conducted in the units: School no.8 and Adancata School of Suceava, using for this purpose the unit’s classrooms. Research was conducted between 01 November 2008 and May 10, 2009, at rate of two hours per week.

Battery of tests established in the early experiment aimed clues that may lead to a most objective overall view of the morph-functional capacity of subjects.

Tests used in the experiment were divided into following categories:

A. Somatic parameters (anthropometric) :
   - body-height
   - height in sitting (trunk)
   - chest perimeter in maximum inspiration
   - chest perimeter in forced expiration
   - body-weight.

B. Tests of the rhythm of music:
   - added side-step with background music
   - “rap” step with background music
   - “cha-cha-cha” step with background music
As specific methods of the modern dance there have been used a number of dances suitable for children in the research group, age 8-10 years:

- Tarzan Dance
- Samba of the Flowers Dance
- Popular Styled Dance
- Doll Dance
Results:

During the research, data obtained from initial and final tests were registered, emphasizing the dynamics of the registered parameters after testing that verified the effectiveness of methods.

Bases on the data and calculated statistical indicators, we could analyze the results:

Discussions:
The means used to educate the pace and body expression in modern dance class increase its efficiency, especially the density of the lessons through active participation due to the attractiveness and good mood created.
By different rhythms, music is directing the execution, activates children, forms paces, leading to acquisition of beautiful elements and being the key to improving the quality of movement.

The use of music favors rhythm education, helps create and maintain a straight posture and teaches positive character features.

Baggage of movements creates harmony between the pace of movement, body expression and music, and places the movement in space and time. This way, comes the opportunity for students to express their feeling and thoughts through natural movements.

Children, who practice modern dance to strengthen health, will become more balanced, and movement, rhythm, body expression, music and harmony will provide them a purpose in life.
